Bank Of India, UCO Bank Cut Lending Rates After RBI Repo Rate Slash

After the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) announced a 25 basis point cut in the repo rate, Bank of India and UCO Bank reduced their lending rates, offering relief to borrowers.

The RBI's Monetary Policy Committee (MPC), led by Governor Sanjay Malhotra, reduced the key policy rate from 6.25% to 6% to support economic growth amid global challenges.

This was the second consecutive rate cut under Malhotra's leadership, influenced partly by the 26% tariff imposed by the US on Indian exports.

Bank of India lowered its Repo-Based Lending Rate (RBLR) to 8.85% (from 9.10%) with immediate effect from April 9.

UCO Bank cut its repo-linked lending rate to 8.8%.

Both banks announced the rate cuts through regulatory filings, citing the RBI's policy decision.

The move is expected to reduce borrowing costs, stimulating credit demand from individuals and businesses.

Analysts expect more banks to follow, transmitting the benefits of the RBI's rate cut to customers nationwide.

Governor Malhotra also announced a shift in the RBI's policy stance from 'neutral' to 'accommodative', signaling a pro-growth approach.

The RBI has already infused over $80 billion into the banking system in the past two months, following a February rate cut — the first in five years.
